About the Organisation

The Victorian Aboriginal Health Service (VAHS) was established in 1973 to address the specific medical needs of Victorian indigenous communities. The organisation has expanded steadily over past 40 years to provide a comprehensive range of medical, dental and social services for our community.

As well as providing a variety of medical services, VAHS is committed to supporting the well-being of the community through contributions to community events and activities. VAHS is also committed to assisting research into the ongoing needs of the community.

About the Opportunity

The role is responsible for providing leadership and co-ordination of all aspects of psychological care and therapeutic service delivery at Family Counselling Service. The Clinical Co-ordinator will work with a team of psychologists, social workers, general practitioners, family therapists and financial wellbeing, partners in recovery and drug and alcohol workers and is expected to use their clinical experience to support practitioners to deliver the highest standard of care in accordance with the FCS Clinical Governance Framework and VAHS policies, procedures and processes.

They will play a senior clinical and supervisory role in supporting the wellbeing and professional development of FCS practitioners, ensuring the highest quality psychological and therapeutic care for help-seeking community members, and developing and maintaining strong relationships and service delivery pathways with key stakeholders and external organisations.
